CLEVELAND LEADER COMPANY.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1865.

On Thursday last, Vallandigham ad-dressed the unterrilled Democracy of Crawford County-such of them as have returned from their sojourn in Canada during the days of drafts-at Bucyrus. and we find a report of his speech in the Cincinnati Gazette. It is, like all his speeches, petulant, egotistical, and self conelted, full of references to himself, glorifiestions of his record, and complaints about his persecutions. Weak and foolish as it is, however, it deserves attention, for Vallandigham is confessedly the leader of the Democratic party and the expounder of Democratic principles—God save the mark—in Ohio. Pendleton may be more scholarly, Pugh more able, Thurman more logical,-Vallandionam is the hero, the martyr, the saint of the Democratic masses, now, as really as when in 1863 he was their candidate for Governor. He still rules the party, elects its leaders, and dictates its policy. He was the temporary Chairman of the last Democratic State Convention; he was the controlling power in its Commistee on Resolutions; he is now its chosen candidate for the United States Senate. And he is the idol of the "Democratic masses, as well as the leader among"Democratic" politicians, Wherever he appears he is received with an enthusiasm which ne other among their leaders excites. His opinions, therefore, are worthy of some attention, for he speaks "with authority, and not as the scribes." Mr. Vallandigham's principal stock in trade is, of course, the "nigger." The African has always been the chief theme of Dimeoratio politicians and it is with a grief that verges on agony that they see him gradually passing beyond the reach of their abuse. He declared that rather than have the Union defended by an "army of negro Janizsries," he would let the Union, the Constitution, all go forever. As Mr. Vallandigham has always been a dis- in the very face of the best directed efforts | Tennessee; Colonel J. Rice, of Massachu unionist, and in the late war did his utmost to second the efforts of Southern rebels for the disselution of the Union, this declaration of his amounts to nothing more than to prove that he is as much of a disunionist now as ever. He indulges in a long and bitter distribe against the negro, capping the climax of his remarks by exhibiting a horrible caricature to the crowd, as a fair specimen of what the | and rostrum to create in the public mind a negro would be after years of education. After this triumphant victory of logic and statesmanship, he passed to his second the country with its bondholders, and perlating upon this: pet "Democratic" pro- emption of Federal bonds from taxationject he let fall a remark which reveals | an exemption based upon the highest most clearly the animus of his party. He grounds of reason and right, and justified diation upon the Democratic party, "lest hobby with this party, which they aim to the people become so familiarized with the | make particularly effective with the poorer idea, that they resolve to repudiate the classes, by endeavoring to show that, out of whole debt." The listening audience enthe pockets of the poor, capitalists are dorsed this open threat of repudiation with resping the benefits arising from the pos-

issues and preterous under which they endeavor to cont their sales purpose are but flimsy, and their real design cannot be hidden. Let then, all those who vote the Vatlandigham ticket in October remember that they are voting for the restoration of slavery, and the repudiation of the National Debt.

A Politician's Platform. If the framers of the New York Repub lican platform had for their object to silence Democratic opposition and win Copperhead votes, they have been very adroit and successful. Their opponents are at a loss. The New York World hardly knows what to say against the platform It can pick no flaws in it, and has to base its whole argument for the Democracy on the personal claims of the Democratic candid stes. And no wonder the World is confounded, for the Republican platform of New York is in essence and spirit a rescript of the resolutions adopted by the New York Democratic Convention. The Democrats will find no principles in it to attack, because all its principles are common to both parties. But is it good policy or sound a tatesmanship thus to escape eriticism and opposition by abandoning the right. A general can always silence his enemy's siege guns by surrendering his own citadel, but the commander who pursues this course will hardly win either victory or fame.

Worms in the Barley. The Cincinnati Gasette has a latter from Indiana describing the ravages of the werm in the barley. The writer sowed a field on the 20th of August, which had lain in clover and timothy pasture during the summer. The grain came up and grow luxuriantly until a week since, when it began to disappear in spots. On examination he found a worm feeding upon it. He watched the depredator, found that it grew and increased rapidly, and by the 18th inst, was from a half-inch in length to the size of a cut worm, which it recembles, except in being slimmer. The whole field of ten scres is destroyed, except a Wall street yesterday to see if this could field of ten acres is destroyed, except a be true, and found it was not. What the Democratic Party has Bone and is Boing for the Country.

The great work of the Democratic party for the past few years has been in opposition to the a is of the General Government. During the rebellion this antagonism was directed mainly to those measures which were adopted by the Government to meet the emergencies of war. The historian of tion was at once the strongest hope of those in open rebellion and the most serious and formidable obstacle, next to the rebellion itself, which the Government was equired to overcome. President Lincoln. with a patriotic desire to follow, as far as the public safety would justify, the will of all the people, without reference to party ines, found himself beset with the objetions and fault-findings of the copperhead element in the North, and when at last it became impossible to regard their demands without sacrifleing the nation, and he commenced that independent policy which found its fruition in the complete over throw of the rebels, the bickerings of the Democracy developed into open hostility of the most violent and dangerous character. Incendiary speeches, designed to inflame the people, were delivered another candidate. throughout the land; societies for the encouragement of hostility to the draft were organized; riots were engandered; officers of the Government were obstructed in ly murderes; and the army was polluted in every possible way until desertion became a matter of serious concern, requiring to remedy it, the employment of an extraordinary force of detectives in every part of the country at an enormous expense. But, in spite of all this, tresson was beaten, and the power of the nation fully whole people thereafter uniting in the comothices hand of war had destroyed.

But Democracy, with the Democratic party, means dissension, and no sooner was the war declared at an end than the leaders of the Government to reduce expenses to the lowest possible limit and provide for the prompt payment of its obligations, they raised the cry of repudiation, and, to encourage such an event, commenced a war against taxation—the only possible channel through which the Government can obtain its required means of supportand are employing all the power of press They understand that now the only vital point of the nation is its credit, and that great ides, which was a war upon the na- this is founded and rests solely upon the tional credit, by breaking the contract of support of the people, and to disledge this support they seek to inculcate an opposimitting the national bonds to be taxed at | tion that shall break down the only bulthe pleasure of State legislatures. Their assaults, inidious and cowardly, are a part of their every day devotions. But, here again they discard facts as utterly destructive to their cause. They know that no safer or more ever designated than that under which the National Banks of the United States are organized. They be not the United States are organized. They know that every dollar ssued is guaranteed for its full value to the holder by the best of security, the pledged faith of the nation, and that, whether the issue is made in Maine or Oregon, it is equally safe and secure. But their objection is not here. These Banks, by their a strawberry. very nature, are the safeguards of the nation's credit, pledged and bound to see that credit fustained, and consequently at war with Democratic policy. A mighty capital, in which millions are interested, from the merchant prince to the poorest peas ant, is thus enlisted in the cause of perpet ual Union and national integrity, and against this Gibraltar the angry waves of Democratic dissension strike but to be hurled back to annihilation.

> Thus, briefly, the record of the Democratic party of to day is this: The prolongation, by their opposition, secretly and openly made, of a most calamitous war, their object being the success of the rebellion and consequently the dissolution of evening last, with the "School for Scanthe Union And falling in this, a war upon dall"—Mrs. Skerrett as Lady Teanle, Mr. the credit and honor of the nation, with the undoubted design of destroying them, both at home and abroad, thus bankrupting at once the people and the Government. And all to carry out the satanic purpose to rule or ruin

Against a party with this policy and these avowed aims, the Union men of Ohio and of the nation are called upon to do battle. To destroy this party, root and branch, is a duty second only to that of maintaining Christianity itself, and the man who fallers in the work is a recreant ly grand. Madame Anna Bishop is shortfor Union and freedom was nobly fought and won, but it would be valueless unless the credit of the nature is preserved unimpaired. The memory of thousands of heroes who fell for the action rests upon the maintenance of that credit; Republican institutions, popular government, religion, everything that is ny has been increased. The Keans company to the company of dear to man, calls for the discharge of every treeneed the week with "Ohelio" at the obligation incurred in the cause of the "Roadway, following with "Louis XI," "Lear," "Macbeth," "Richard III," and the "Stranger," in the creder of their men-Democratic party we have no guarantee tion. Having thus scared his keepers, he showed a clean pair of heels and struck out for a piece of woods about a quarter of a mile distant. As luck would have it, however, he passed, in his flight, a stable where another son of the obeyiff was at work. Young Callahan com-prebended the position of affairs very soon, and gave chase to the run-way, firing at him with a revolver, and calling to him to stop. The noise of the firing brought others to the pursuit, including the Sheriff, who had been released from durance, and away went pursuers and pursued, over the fences and through the fields. Young Callaban, who had started the game, continued to fire, and the fifth shot grazed the convict's ear, and brought him to a halt. He was ex-amined on Monday morning, before Justice Coolman, and committed for trial in the Court of Common Pleas.

Upon Tuesday morning the colored prisoner Day, and the prisoner Smith alias Wright, resolved themselves into a dapating society, to discuss the question "Is an Irishman a white man." Dy has no particular relish for Irishmen, not just now at least, when the chief witnesses against him are of that nationality, and as the debate proceeded pitched into his opponent and stabbed him in the left arm, with a good sized jack-knife which he had dall"—Mrs. Skerrett as Lady Teasis, Mr.

hir Morton Peto and the Baptist Church.

We have been shown by Rav. S. J. Dawson, paster of the East Toledo Baptist Church, a draft on New York for $200, given by Sir Morton Peto to aid in the erection of a house of worship on that side of the river. Sir Morton Peto is a member of the Baptist denomination, and is Treasurer of the Baptist Missionary Society of Great Britain. When Mr. Dawson was introduced to him as a Baptist lergyman, he made inquiry as to his Church, and on learning that he was building a small church, he at once asked Mr. D. to accept this contribution. It was entirely unsolicited and unexpected, and we state this much as showing that our distinguished guest has done a kindly act, which is gratefully appreciated by those most nearly interested.—Totalo Commer-
